"Dave?"

"What?"

"There's a spider in here, I'm scared..."

Dave sighed and rolled off his bed, padding to Junior's room. As he poked his head in the doorway, Junior's 7 year old face peeked out from under his comforters.

"It's above me." Junior squeaked, his lips barely moving. Dave walked to Junior's nightstand and turned his lamp on, peering up at the ceiling. Nothing was there.

"There's no spider David, you're just seeing things." He clicked the lamp back off and turned to go.

"What if he comes back? Can I sleep with you tonight? Please?" Dave sighed.

"Of course."
